More Than 2,000 Attend Local Experiment Farm, Visiting Day

I. W. Duggan, Cully Cobb's First Assistant, Speaks for the AAA on "The New Cotton Program"

With a cloudburst started off at least until 3:30 p. m. the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station's annual Visiting day program was headed for an outstanding success Friday, 1,800 visitors having been registered up to noon, with an additional 500 probably on the grounds during the afternoon.

Will Recruit 507 Workers for Old Age Pension Staff

Number Locally to Be Governed by Eligibles Within County

FIRM ON SALES TAX

Governor Confident It Will Stand—35 Per Cent for Pensions, Charity

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Putrell told members of the state Welfare Commission Thursday that he believes 35 per cent of the sales tax will become available for payment of old age pensions and relief to unemployed as rapidly as the tax is collected without further legislation.

The governor indicated further his belief that the sales tax act will not be repealed, when he requested that Commissioner Roy Prewitt immediately fit an application for a WPA "white collar" project for 507 clerical workers to assist county welfare boards in receiving and compiling old age and unemployed relief applications.

The application will be filed this week or early next week, Mr. Prewitt said, and the number of workers sought for each county will be governed by the number of old age pension eligibles and other unemployed in the county. Services of the federal workers will be sought for 60 days.

Relying on Preamble
Governor Putrell did not elaborate on his statement that part of the sales tax revenue would be available for relief purposes. However, other members of the commission said that he based his opinion on a belief that the courts would construe the intent of the legislation to be as indicated in preambles to the welfare act, old age pension act and sales tax bill, although the original sales tax bill was amended to allot 35 per cent of the revenue to the general revenue fund.

Many members of the legislature have said that they believed the 35 per cent was allotted to relief purposes. However the money was not appropriated out of the general revenue fund.

The governor previously had indicated he believed the courts might hold that $300,000 appropriated "from the state treasury" for welfare purposes should come from the general revenue fund.

Attorney General Carl E. Bailey held several weeks ago that the $300,000 item was meaningless because it did not specify from what fund in the treasury the money was appropriated.

Governor Putrell told the Welfare Commission, of which he is ex-officio chairman, that "there is plenty of time to call a special session to amend the act," if it finally develops that the welfare fund cannot benefit from the sales tax under present legislation. He indicated that a court test would be the logical course for the commission to pursue, if it should draw a voucher against the ambiguous $300,000 appropriation and the treasurer should decline to pay the warrant.

Senator O. A. Featherston of Pike county, who opposed the sales tax act but sponsored an old age pension measure, told the commission that he would not vote to repeal the sales tax.

Stratosphere Bag Bursts on Ground, But None Is Hurt

Mysterious Collapse Occurs One Hour Before Expected Takeoff

MEN LEAP SAFELY

5 Jump From Gondola to Earth—375,000 Cubic Feet Gas Is Lost

RAPID CITY, S. D.—(AP)—Disaster overtook the National Geographic-U. S. Army Air Corps stratosphere balloon here Friday as the giant bag collapsed from an unexplained cause one hour before the scheduled take-off.

No one was injured, but five men working on the gondola were forced to jump to safety.

The top of the mammoth bag burst open without warning, permitting 375,000 cubic feet of helium gas to escape and definitely halting the projected flight.

Captain Albert W. Stevens, flight commander, said he had absolutely no explanation for the mishap.

Holding Co. Abuse Cited by Lasley

Action Against Utilities Urged as Cities' Executives Meet

LITTLE ROCK.—Permanent regulation of public utilities in Arkansas under constitutional amendment, action by city and town councils to compel reduction of local telephone rates, and possibilities of municipal public utility ownership, were principal themes of discussion at the first annual convention of the Arkansas Municipal League which opened its two-day session in North Little Rock Thursday.

P. A. Lasley, chairman of the recently established state Department of Public Utilities, recounted activities of the department and of its predecessor, the First Finding Tribunal created by the 1933 legislature. He credited establishment of both offices to Governor B. H. Ladd, and said that the present department was set up only after a "titanic struggle in the recent legislature." Rate reductions amounting to more than $60,000 yearly have been put into effect since the utility department was established in April, he said.

"There is no closed season for the utilities and they are constantly at work," said Mr. Lasley. "Sometimes they attempt to destroy or prevent the passage of adequate regulatory measures. At other times they try to secure an incompetent personnel on state commissions. The result of either course is the same, no regulation."

Mr. Lasley said that operating executives of utility companies often do not approve of unjust and unreasonable rates imposed or of practices used to enforce them, but that their companies' policies are dictated through holding companies in Wall Street. He condemned holding companies that are more than one step removed from the operating company, and declared that states can effectively regulate holding companies and that it is not necessary to have federal regulation of them.

Two Wounded in Marshall Battle

Another Pair Shot in Money Quarrel in Bullet-Riddled Town

MARSHAL, Ark.—(AP)—Two men were wounded Wednesday night in a shooting at the home of Friday Joe Jackson, 46, farmer, who lives near Harrison.

Jackson was wounded slightly in the ankle while Howard Ratford, 26, also a farmer, was hurt seriously by a shotgun charge which struck him in the left side of the chest. Ratford was taken to Little Rock for treatment.

Jackson told officers that Ratford and two other men he could not identify went to his home and demanded that he "come across with the money."

The farmer was quoted as saying that he fired on the three as they advanced toward his house despite a warning from him to stay away. Jackson said he was wounded when the men returned the fire.

Naughty? Nice? Paris Decides

Hundreds of Parisian dancers shall continue to pirouette on a natural following a court decision in the test case of Joan Warner, above, 22, American "Puppet of Nude Rhythm," acquitted of dancing "in the raw" in a French cafe. A society "for the increase of French population" contended nude dancing is not conducive to quiet family life; while her attorney held Miss Warner's technique is as artistic as anything at the Louvre.

New Works Setup Outlined by Mann

Headquarters in Carrigan Building—May Move to Garland School

Claude Mann, Malvern publisher and newly-appointed Works Progress Administrator (WPA) for the nine southwest Arkansas counties having Hope as their headquarters, outlined briefly to the Rotary club Friday the local setup which handle work under the president's 4-billion-dollar program.

Temporary headquarters have been established in the Carrigan building, home of the State Highway Department district office—but permanent headquarters may finally be set up in the old Garland school building, Mr. Mann said.

"It is the purpose of the WPA," he continued, "to gradually liquidate the FERA so far as able-bodied persons are concerned, by giving them paid jobs on useful government works locally."

"Ours is strictly a federal setup. Every man on my staff was sworn in by federal officers. Every purchase must be approved by Little Rock headquarters. Every local decision on operations must be governed by a federal manual which allows no leeway whatsoever."

"Our personnel or job-granting department will be in charge of Joe R. Floyd, already widely experienced with local conditions through his service in the old FERA organization."

Upon a suggestion from President Roy Anderson of the Rotary club, approved by Mr. Mann, it was voted to ask property owners to list all vacant habitable dwellings with The Star, to aid the WPA in placing its personnel in permanent domestic quarters here. All such listings will be turned over by the newspaper to Mr. Mann.

Mr. Mann was introduced to the club by Ed McCorkle.

The Rev. Thomas Brewster in charge of the club program, gave an excellent discussion of fear as a controlling factor in the lives of men.

A recent magazine survey of 2,500 persons, he said, showed that there had total of 7,000 different kinds of fear—old age, disease, misfortune, circumstances, and fear of other individuals.

He closed with the reminder that "the only thing that keeps away that wolf of fear is the fire of faith."

Guests Friday besides Mr. Mann were: C. Mitchell, G. K. Alford, A. R. Baunick, of Sheridan; C. T. Key, of Gurdon; H. G. Watkins, Dave Price, Rev. Roy Naylor, of Nashville; and Monte Kitchens, of Little Rock.

American Dancer Acquitted in Paris on Nudity Charge

Joan Warner Is Cleared on Morals Charge—Her Dance Is "Art"

"NO SHOCK," JUDGE

French National Society's Protest Fails in Packed Courtroom

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Miss Joan Warner, who started life in the nude in Narberth, Pa., will find out next week just what the French law thinks of her continuing in the nude when she dances in Paris.

She and many other persons testified concerning her dancing in somewhat hilarious court proceedings Thursdays during which a judge announced that nakedness did not shock him and in which it was indicated that Joan's act was not considered immoral.

A charge of "offending public modesty" was brought against the tall American blonde by the Association For the Increase of the French population.

Defends Appearance

Miss Warner spoke in her own behalf with what the French spectators called "a delicious American accent." "Everything is absolutely chaste in my dance number," she testified. "I am covered from head to foot with white make-up. An invisible lavender silk cloth covered me in my absolutely correct positions."

"Gentlemen, I serve art and nothing else."

Opposes Her "Principle"
M. Bouverat, vice president of the plaintiff association, was not sure about all that covering. He said he saw Miss Warner dance in a fashionable restaurant here and "if she wore any clothes, they were so small I couldn't see them." He asked that Miss Warner be punished "for the principle of the thing."

Backing up his contention that nude dancing interfered with the ideals of the association, he represented Bouverat as saying: "Since Hitler suppressed nude dancing in Germany, the Nazi birth rate has risen 35,000 a year."

Nudism Not Shocking

Maurice Devilmack, painter, told the court that he had never failed to shock him. Said the court: "It doesn't shock me, either."

At the opening of the hearing, the presiding judge threw out motion picture cameras and sound apparatus, and overruled a dense suggestion that Miss Warner do her dance in the courtroom "in the interests of justice."

The dance specifically mentioned was Miss Warner's prize number, "The Slave Dance," in which to the naked eye, the dancer looks the same way, except for a collection of chains. At the close of the number, the chains are dropped and the dancer cartwheels off the stage, with great rapidity.

Dance "Almost Puritan"

Defense lawyers contend the dance she did at the Faubourg restaurant was "almost Puritan in its modesty." There she was supplied with 6 ounces of gauze which the lawyers asserted "covered all parts of her anatomy except those which are exposed daily in any Paris swimming pool."

Also she was shielded, they claim, "by indirect lighting, which, as everyone knows, is capable of amazing effects."

Confesses Slaying of Her Son-in-Law

Mrs. Dunkel Says He Was Given Knockout Drops and Murdered

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, who allegedly confessed hiring assassins to slay her son-in-law, Ervin Lang, swamp murder victim, admitted Friday, so Police Lieutenant Thomas Kelley said, that she too long to an apartment where knockout drops were administered before he was slain.

The 153rd and 154th fought it out for three hours as the long column of infantry moved slowly, but with determination, toward Searcy. Although Colonel McAlester did not report the battle from his field headquarters near Searcy, due probably to military censorship, Lieutenant Garbacz reported upon the 154th's return to the National Guard field headquarters that he "guessed the fight was about a draw."

Lindsey and Contable Sam Moore were shot after they had arrested Cernoch on a minor charge.

'Non-Nose Over' Plane Tested

A new "flier" monoplane, of the pusher type, which its designer claims cannot nose over, is shown here in two views, about to land at Wayne county airport, Detroit, Mich., and below in a closeup. Designed by Dean Hammond, of Ypsilanti, Mich., 15 of these ships have been built for the bureau of air commerce and given exhaustive tests. The craft is of metal construction, with fabric-covered wings and tail surface and will cruise at 100 miles an hour. The air-cooled engine is mounted at the two-place cabin and two of the three landing wheels are behind the center of gravity.

Planes in Mock Attack on Guard

"Battle" Ends in Draw, Says Unofficial Report From Camp Pike

LITTLE ROCK.—Struts screaming their protest against wind that threatened to rip wings from fuselage, three ships of the 154th Observation Squadron, Arkansas National Guard, dived and rolled as they strafed the convoy of the 153rd Infantry, A. N. G., as it moved from Camp Pike to Searcy Thursday.

The 153rd moved out of camp almost with the dawn to establish a position at Searcy. Theoretically it was to engage there enemy infantry advancing on Little Rock. However, before Col. Heber L. McAlester's regiment reached its objective, three ships of the 154th led by Lieut. Ed Garbacz, representing an enemy attack group, swooped down on the moving column to attack.

The theoretical first engagement took place between Beebe and Searcy, where the army hawks virtually fell on six trucks of the convoy. The infantrymen abandoned their trucks, alertly at the command of their officers, scurrying to cover from which they returned with rifle fire the imaginary deadly machine gun bursts of the ships.

The 153rd and the 154th fought it out for three hours as the long column of infantry moved slowly, but with determination, toward Searcy. Although Colonel McAlester did not report the battle from his field headquarters near Searcy, due probably to military censorship, Lieutenant Garbacz reported upon the 154th's return to the National Guard field headquarters that he "guessed the fight was about a draw."

U. S. C. of C. Says Proposal Is Frightening National Business

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—George B. Chandler, of Columbus, representing the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Friday described the president's new tax plan before the house ways and means committee hearing as on which would bring "redistribution of poverty" rather than wealth.

He insisted it was "one of the six major menaces that hang over the country like a black cloud."

House Would Bar Suits

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house banking committee Friday approved the administration bill to bar suits against the government to collect alleged damages arising out of the devaluation of the dollar.

Castly Utility Lobby

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Evidence that more than $300,000 was spent by public utility executives in an effort to defeat the provision of the utilities bill to abolish unnecessary holding companies within seven years was given the senate lobby committee Friday by Philip H. Gadsden of Philadelphia.

Gold Ban Opposed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's request for legislation to halt gold clause suits encountered difficulties Thursday that forced more trouble ahead.

Attorney General Cummings appeared before the Senate Banking Committee to smooth the way for the proposal. But he found himself surrounded by hostile senators, including two former secretaries of the Treasury—William G. McAdoo of California, and Carter Glass of Virginia—both of whom suggested it would destroy government credit.

Similar warnings were voiced before the house banking committee by Franklin W. Fort, former member of Congress and head of the Home Loan Bank Board under President Hoover. The house committee, however, planned to meet Friday in an effort to get the measure onto the floor during the day.

The resolution, recommended a few days ago by President Roosevelt in a special message, would close the courts to damage suits against the government resulting from any losses sustained by gold-clause bond holders through dollar devaluation. It is designed to close the loop-hole left by the supreme court in its famous gold decisions.

Defends Proposal
Cummings, before the senate committee, contended the resolution was the legitimate, inevitable, logical outcome of the government's monetary program and that therefore discussion of policy was "water over the dam."

2 Unmasked Men Get $700 Loot in Bloomburg Holdup

Bandits Make Getaway in Town 30 Miles South of Texarkana

HOLD UP OFFICIALS

Vice-President, Cashier, Customer, Forced to Lie on Floor

TEXARKANA.—(AP)—Two unmasked men Friday held up officials and a customer of the Bloomburg State Bank at Bloomburg, Texas, near the Arkansas line 30 miles south of here, and escaped with between $600 and $700.

The holdup occurred a few minutes before noon, the bandits escaping in a waiting car driven by a confederate and heading toward Doddridge, Ark., and the north Louisiana line. Officers from over the section joined a posse in pursuit of the robbers.

J. B. Simmons, vice-president of the bank; Bruce Simmons, cashier; and Will Grogan, a customer, were forced to lie on the floor of the bank while the cash was being scooped up from the cages.

Harlem May Send Help to Ethiopia

But 'Expeditionary Force' Is Held Up by the Lack of Shoes

GRASSE, France.—(AP)—Haul du Berrier, former American commercial air pilot, announced Friday he had recruited 12 American fliers to fight for Ethiopia.

Harlem Recruiting

NEW YORK.—Ready to combat Italian attacks from overhead and under foot, 59 negroes, forming the first contingent of the E. F. F. Expeditionary Force, are to leave Philadelphia next week, it was announced here Thursday.

Others will follow as soon as shoes can be provided, it was said by Samuel Daniels, commander-in-chief of the Ethiopian Foreign Legion, for it seems the Abyssinian army marches on its feet and is particularly about protecting those feet.

Daniel Thursday afternoon issued a public appeal for shoes.

Spread before him, his battered desk were press clippings telling of reports that Mussolini's chemists had perfected an acid to speed on the ground and burn the feet of the unshod Ethiopian tribesmen during the war which Commander Daniels, once an African tribesman himself, is sure will come. Thick-soled shoes would foil this more or less dastardly concocted plan of war, he believes.

Enlistments were slow this afternoon when Commander Daniels asked that each housewife of Harlem, regardless of race or nationality, donate a pair of stout shoes. He proposes to ship the shoes to Africa, along with the first contingent of volunteers enrolled by the Pan-African Reconstruction Association, which was organized by Daniels "for the industrial and commercial benefit of Ethiopia."

Commander Daniels indicated it would all be a great surprise to Emperor Haile Selassie.

As to enlistments, Daniels estimated that during the week he has been campaigning in Harlem he has enrolled 550 volunteers, of which about 100 have managed to dig up the 25-cent registration fee to cover overhead.

"Where are you going to get the money to send them over?" the zealous organizer was asked.

"That" he replied, "is none of your business. You don't think we would 'go ahead without plans do you?'"

Blood May Stagnate If Heart's Valves Fail

If there is any organ of your body that requires utmost care and watchfulness, it is the heart. On it depends circulation of the blood through your body, and that means complete circulation without the least bit of interruption or diminution.

The heart is a muscular organ through which the blood passes after it comes from the lungs, and from which it is pumped into the blood vessels. As the blood passes from one of the four heart compartments into another, it goes through valves which open and shut regularly.

Whenever any of the valves changes its form because of disease or for any other reason, it will not close completely. Sometimes the blood gurgles back into the chamber from which it came. This is called regurgitation.

The doctor can discover this by listening to the heart. Under such condition he can hear a murmur.

In many instances the valve is affected by inflammations and by depositing of lime salts in the form of little nodules. These also prevent an accurate closing of the valve.

Failure of the heart to pump the blood successfully leads to stagnation of the blood in various parts of the body, sometimes with changes in the pulse rate and in blood pressure.

Treatment of valvular disease of the heart depends on the severity of the condition. The doctor not only has to endeavor to control the damage that has already taken place, but to prevent further damage.

He therefore limits the amount of exercise with the understanding that nothing should be done that brings about shortness of breath and distress. In the same way he encourages work which the afflicted person can undertake without putting too great a strain on his weakened heart.

It is particularly important, however, to make certain that a person with heart disease should never undergo a sudden strain, such as running to catch a train or trying to lift a heavy weight.

Particularly important also is great moderation in eating. If a person is confined to bed, the amount of food should be small and preferably dry. The meals should be taken regularly.

It is possible, body weight should be controlled because overweight is always a menace in heart disease.

It is also important for the person with a disturbance of the heart to avoid any secondary infection, like the common cold or sinus disease. Infection tends to attack portions of the body already weakened by disease.

Therefore, such people should avoid fatigue, hunger, and unnecessary exposure to cold and rain. They must also see to it that the mouth is kept free from disease by adequate dental and medical care.

Centers Hot Attack on Tooth Paste Ads—Dentist Debunks Unfounded Claims for "Remedies"

If advertisements of trick tooth pastes, mouth washes and oral disinfectants constitute your favorite reading matter, you may get quite a jolt out of "Paying Through the Teeth," by Dr. Bissell B. Palmer.

Dr. Palmer, former president of the American College of Dentists, declares bluntly that a great deal of plain and fancy fraud is perpetrated on the American public in connection with the sale of such things.

which destroy the enamel and permanently injure the teeth. All this he has written in an indignant and enlightening book. He names names, throughout, quotes verbatim from advertisements, and analyzes some of the most famous preparations to show how far they fall short of doing the things they are supposed to do. He adds, incidentally, that high officials in a company selling a tooth paste supposed to cure pyorrhea are themselves afflicted with that disease.

Published by Vanguard, the book sells for $2.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Stripping Home of Inessential Items Eases Busy Mother's Daily Tasks

In hot weather most mothers find their work just about double with their energy at a lower ebb than in winter. The children are at home and can think up more ways of making a mess than executives.

Try to reduce the pressure as much as possible. Health and spirits are more important than the house, so it is an excellent plan to pretend that the house is a cottage by the lake, sparsely furnished and trimmed to the bone.

Bareness has a certain restfulness about it. Too many things in a room not only make it stuffy but constitute a mental hazard to the housewife. They have to be dusted and kept in place.

Take up all the vases and put them away. Unnecessary lamps, too. Roll the rugs back to the wall neatly. You can't do this in rooms, perhaps, where the boards are unfinished, but that little cottage might have unfinished floors, too.

Cut Down on Ironing Unless you are exposed to neighborly view, the curtains may come down, except where your pride insisted they stay. Window shades are better down to the sill on hot days, anyway. A darkened house rests the nerves and keeps out heat.

The ironing—well, John's shirts have to be ironed, and the children's suits and dresses that they put on "clean-up" time. Otherwise, sheets can be folded hot and sweet off the line, smoothed with the hand and laid away for use.

Paper napkins and any of the spongeable table covers are perfectly legitimate, just as they would be in the cottage or camp. Bed-spreads make heavy washing. Clean sheets do as an excellent substitute.

To save the bathroom after the children have been making mudpies, let them go to the laundry and clean off the worst.

Campaign Against Flies Have a fly campaign each morning, children and all. Flies jungle nerves. So do slamming screen doors. Make that a campaign, too. The children must learn not to slam screens. Personal bawling, if you realized it, mother, will tire you as much as work.

As far as possible leave the roasts and boiled dinners for cooler days. The family needs hot food, but not necessarily food that keeps the fire going in the stove half the day.

Seersucker or cotton creps are good—send to mothers for all sorts of children's clothes. They need no ironing.

Do the heaviest tasks in the cool of the morning. Too often the busy housewife reverts to this. Teach the children to make their beds. It is simple in summer. And teach them to keep their clothes off the floor.

SUN-TAN

BY NARD JONES © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, leaves her father in out of work. Jo gets a job as bookkeeper in a small marine supply store. She is engaged to BRETT PAUL, athletic star.

DOUGLAS MARSH, handsome, wealthy, comes to the store to buy equipment for the summer colony he is establishing at Great Lake. Jo works overtime, assisting with the order, and Marsh asks her to have dinner with him.

She accepts the invitation, later regrets this, because she knows so little about Marsh.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

AS Jo sat at the lunch counter endeavoring to justify the sudden turn of events which had given her, all in one day, a new job and a dinner engagement with a millionaire bachelor, her woman's mind shot into the practical question, "What shall I wear?"

She had not yet even unpacked her trunk at the Fendale apartments, and it was now almost 3 o'clock. Hurriedly she finished her coffee, wondering whether her blue dress would be fit. She hadn't worn it since the last sorority dance and it had been on its banger in her wardrobe trunk ever since.

And her dark blue slippers—if she remembered rightly she had stepped into a puddle in front of the gymnasium that night, and never cleaned them. It was the last dance of the campus season, and she had simply tossed everything into her trunk, thinking she would take them out at home.

When she reached the Fendale she ordered her trunk sent up at once, and when it arrived she hurriedly examined the clothes in question. Thank Heaven, the slippers could be made presentable by a little scrubbing with a stiff brush! And her silk jacket which would make the blue dress correct for dinner wear was presentable enough. But the blue dress needed pressing.

"I won't have time to send the dress out," Jo thought. "And besides, it would cost too much in my state of affairs."

So out came the little electric iron and cord she had used at school; and in the wall of the kitchenet was, luckily, an ironing board which folded down for use. Jo fell to work with a will, and in a short time the blue silk was hanging in presentable folds on a hanger suspended from the light fixture. Her best stockings she found ready to wear—and when it came to underthings, well, Jo had always been extravagant. This was one of the times when she was glad for this extravagance.

SHE was interrupted twice in her preparations. The first was by a special delivery letter from her father. As Jo read it she found it hard to keep back the tears.

"Dear Daughter: Your Mother has just shown me your letter in which you say that you are not coming home, but are going to find a job for the summer. I wish I might have had the chance to explain to you face to face the predicament I find myself in, but perhaps it was best that you know before returning. It's probably just as well that you did not come home, for I must confess that right now we don't feel very gay, and I'm afraid the house would be no place for a young girl."

"I wish you all kinds of luck in finding a place, but I want you to know that you are welcome here any time, and that we are anxious to see you. I am sure that everything will turn out for the best. I have made a living for you and Mother for a good long time, and I certainly hope to keep on doing it."

"Mother sends her love, and so do I—Dad."

If Jo had owned the money for a ticket to Weston she might have started immediately for home—just to try to comfort her mother and father, to make them see that, as far as Jo Darien was concerned, they were still the finest and most lovable persons on earth. Poor Dad! There was so much his letter didn't say, so much that came through to Jo without words.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Ruth 1:14-22; 4:14-17

The International Union Sunday School Lesson for July 11.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

Naomi is presented in our lesson as the typical woman of faith and courage.

The story of Ruth and Naomi comes out of an ancient period of depression. Hard times have always tested the souls of men and women. They have revealed the weaknesses of those who could get along pleasantly in prosperous times, and at the same time have revealed the latent and inherent strength of many whose heroic qualities and courage of endurance would never otherwise have been emphasized.

The whole book of Ruth should be read in connection with the lesson. It tells how in the days of Gideon, Israel's courage leader, Elimelech and his wife, Naomi, with their two sons, were driven by hard times to leave their home in Judah and cross the Jordan, seeking better conditions in the land of Moab.

Ten years passed, during which Elimelech died and the two sons, who married Moabish women, also died. The three widows were left, Naomi and her daughters-in-law, Orpah and Ruth.

The lot of the widows was hard, and Naomi, hearing that times were better in Judah, decided to return to her own country. The daughters-in-law went with her to the border of the country and were determined to go on with their mother-in-law, though she urged them to return.

Under her urging Orpah finally was induced to go back to her own people, but Ruth persisted in her determination and came to Judah with Naomi, with an expression of loyalty and devotion that has become classic.

Ruth thus is a type of woman of loyalty and devotion, as Naomi is the typical woman of faith and courage. There must have been some remarkable quality in Naomi to have inspired such love and devotion as her daughters-in-law manifested after their husbands had been taken away. The remaining part of the story after the return to Judah is one, also, of the testing of the women. Life was not easy, but they met its hardships with a spirit of courage and resourcefulness.

The story has a much deeper significance than appears on the surface, because this woman Ruth, a Moabite, was destined to become the great-grandmother of David, and thus an ancestor of Jesus who was of the lineage of David.

The teaching and the life of Jesus mark Him as the Savior of the world. In everything significant He transcended his Jewish environment and nationality, but it is interesting to find, as we trace His antecedents, the linking of His life with a source outside of Palestine in a woman of such beautiful and noble character as Ruth, the Moabite.

Through the process of human history runs this stream of character in the good and the great. It is the saving factor in a history that has its large measure of deceit and untruth, sordid and brutal selfishness, violence and cruelty.

Thank God for the Naomis and Ruths, and for the Saviors who come from a human ancestry of loyalty, love and faith.

A scientist has succeeded in measuring down to one 600-millionth of a second.

Jo nodded. "I'd like very much to go there."

The sleek roadster brought them there in quick time. The green-uniformed doorman saluted Marsh as if he were a major-general; and when they were inside, the head waiter, with that sure instinct of head-waiters, sized up Marsh with a glance and led them to an excellent table which gave Jo a full view of the dancers and diners.

Marsh's gaze traveled along the long room with its quiet wall drapes and its clever indirect lighting. "Not bad at all," he said. "And that music is inviting. But suppose we start with cocktails. Would you like me to order?"

"Please do."

She did not say that she had never before been out with a man who could order a dinner.

Negro Wanted All Due a Bridegroom

Suspicious of Marriage License That Bore no Fine Gold Seal

LITTLE ROCK—"Dis heah license ain't no good. Yuh done forgot tuh put a gold piece in it," exclaimed an excited negro who rushed into the office of County Clerk Bernie Hoff Thursday.

Glancing over the license, Louis Mashburn, chief deputy, saw nothing wrong and asked for a fuller explanation.

"Well sah, a friend of mine done got married and got a big gold seal put on his license," explained the negro. "Dis heah license ain't got no seal."

Mr. Mashburn pointed out the mark of the county clerk's seal on the left side of the certificate and explained that gold seals sometimes are added to marriage licenses by certain justices of the peace, who find them an aid to business.

However the complaint was one of many received regarding the lack of gold seal and Mr. Mashburn said that when the next batch of marriage licenses is printed they will come equipped with gold seals.

said he had been one of the first advocates of dollar devaluation, but did not agree that closing the courts to damage suits was an "essential" of that policy.

"Do all lawyers agree that an essential of sovereignty is the right to repudiate?" Glass asked tartly.

His question went unanswered, as McCade asserted that no government obligations were "of any value so long as the government can repudiate at will."

The Californian added that he was "concerned over the effect on the credit of the United States."

"No bond is binding on any government," Cummings replied. A moment later when Senator Gore, democrat, Oklahoma, again used the word "repudiation," Cummings said:

"I don't call it repudiation, but that word doesn't hurt my feelings."

Wage War Upon Taxes
WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Tydings-Ickes feud, precipitated by the Senate's Virgin Islands investigation, reached the proportions of a political upheaval as President Roosevelt himself sought to step between them as peacemaker.

Senators Tydings and Ickes, coincidentally suspended for the time being the inquiry into the island administration of Gov. Paul M. Pearson.

Rumblings of the war were heard from one end of the capital to the other. Persistent rumors were heard that both Pearson and Federal Judge T. Webster Wilson of the islands District Court would resign.

Chairman Tydings of the investigating committee—declining to reveal the real reason for suspending the inquiry—said it probably would be resumed next week.

Secretary Ickes, asserting that neither he, Pearson, nor Ernest Gruening, head of the Interior Department's division of Territories, would resign, gave no hint that he would seek to quit his quarrel with Tydings. Asked if he was ready to "smoke the pipe of peace," Ickes replied:

"I haven't smoked a pipe for a good many years."
